Make Trouble for Reporters.

There is always great excitement among the official reporters of the house when Representative Littlefield begins a speech. The men who do the shorthand work of congress are regarded as the most expert reporters in the country, but it is with fear and trembling that they approach did not enunciate well it would be almost impossible for the reporters to atch his utterances. As it is they anage, by a special effort, to keep ce with him, but they are always d when he has finished. Senator oney of Mississippi gives the senate orters much trouble. He is not a fast talker, but has a wondervocabulary. His rapid fire of words, in a low tone of voice, drives the reporters almost to distraction.

Georgia is on the road to agricultural prosperity, for an educated people means better farms and better farming. The legislature of that state last year passed an act establishing 11 agricultural high schools as branches of the State College of agriculture. These schools receive from the state, each, about $6,000 a year, but each community in which such a school is located must furnish not less than 200 acres of good land and the necessary equipment. The people of Georgia have responded enthusiastically to this requirement and over a million dollars in land and money has been offered for their equipment.

Could the baby see, could she hear, could she eat, did she have teeth, and why dida't she talk and walk? Those were a few of the questions he asked. Answers not being altogether satisfactory, he began a personal investigation. He opened the baby's eyes when and brands. I was never able to she was asleep to see where her eyes any difference in the cotton fertilized had gone to, anyway; he opened her by Anderson goods and the other goods mouth in search of teeth, and it was here that the family came to the rescue, and the small boy was told that he could never visit his baby sister without clasping his hands closely behind him.

"He loves the baby so that he Mr. J. E. Stevenson, stands by the half hour just looking at her," said the proud mother of both youngsters to a visitor. "And he is so honorable that he never thinks of taking his hands from behind his back. Just come and see him now." But as the two entered the nursery mamma gave a wild scream as she rushed for her baby.

There was the small boy, his hands clasped tightly behind his back, to be sure, but the baby not having responded to his challenge to play, he had taken her silence for consent, and was bumping heads with her.

Irksome for Both Parties.

A long friendship and a short engagement is, perhaps, the best combination. A prolonged engagement is the most trying relationship between the sexes possible to conceive. For the woman it means the drawbacks of matrimony without the charm of restful finality, or any of matrimony's solid worldly advantages. On the man's side it means the irksomeness of the marriage yoke without any of its satisfactions and comforts.-The Grand Magazine.
